In "Bullet With Butterfly Wings" they had a bit of a metal influence that I don't really see in "Peel Session" nor "Grapevine Fires". With that said, I really like the vocals on this, they're a bit lower than on most of the other songs, but not as soft as on "Galaxies Collide". I do like the harmonic chording and the use of the Am7 note a lot, it definitely adds another dimension to the song. I liked this song more than any of the others, it's fun to listen to and the solo at the end of the song is nice. I didn't think I was going to like it, but I'm glad I gave it a shot.1. Bundled with Diskeeper Home Edition, there is a wide variety of exciting technology in this software application. As a Diskeeper® Powered File System, we have created this application so that you are able to easily find, create and share files and folders on your hard drive. The Diskeeper Home Edition User Interface is quite user-friendly and well designed. The left part of the main window contains a collection of icons, the current volume properties (FSC file-system counter) and some options (very simple options, mostly invisible). In the middle of the main window, the main interface starts. Here, you can select the defragmenting method (quick, normal, automatic, automatic while Windows is running and additional options). On the right side, you can find the left pane, where you can view the currently analyzed volume, perform searches for files on your hard drive and more. Underneath the main interface is the bottom pane, where you can find all the main icons and buttons related to the defragmentation process, as well as some additional features. Up to this point, we have described only the main interface. This section of the article will introduce the remaining sections and elements of the software. Analysis: Here, you can select the volume that you want to analyze. Once you have selected a volume, the file-system counter will appear (it is in yellow). Upon completion, the main interface (and the bottom pane) will change to reflect the selected options. A file-system counter will be displayed in the middle of the main interface. Note: You can analyze two or more volumes at the same time. Automatic Defrag: The main interface will display two panes, each containing information on a volume. The left pane will list the folders for each volume. The right pane will display information on the volume. It will list the currently scanned files on the volume and the number of fragments in each file. The defrag process will start when you select the checkbox next to Automatic Defrag. You can select the files that should be defragmented and, if you are interested, you can also select files that should be analyzed during the defragmentation process (e.g. garbage files). You can also select the time that the defragmentation process should last. In addition, if you would like to analyze a specific file, you can select it from the bottom pane and select "Prevent fragmentation for this
